

Papers are invited for the Journalism Education Association of New Zealand annual conference, to be held at AUT University, November 28-29, 2013.

Conference theme: The Mobile Age or #journalism that won't sit still.

The ongoing disruption of 'traditional' journalism practice by digital technologies is encapsulated nowhere more succinctly than in the touch-screen mobile device still quaintly called a 'telephone'. Growth in mobile consumption is strong as both consumers and journalists adjust to an age where no one needs to sit down for the news. Meanwhile, within the increasingly wireless network, participatory media continue to blur the lines around journalism. How should journalism educators respond?

Presenters are invited to submit abstracts for either papers addressing the conference theme or non-themed papers by August 31, 2013.

Papers requiring blind peer review must be with conference convenors by September 30, 2013.

For all inquiries, please contact Greg Treadwell (gregory.treadwell@aut.ac.nz) or Dr Allison Oosterman (aoosterm@aut.ac.nz).